The Byron Criddle Scholarship is available to UK/EU undergraduate students in the Department of Politics and International Relations, within the School of Social Science. The scholarship is funded by one of our graduates who has chosen to name it in honour of Byron Criddle, the influential and popular Reader in Politics who taught from 1968 to 2007.

The donor found an overseas internship a life-changing experience which enhanced his employability and he wishes to offer this opportunity to other students.

One scholarship of £1000 will be available for the 2009/10 academic year.

The scholarship is to be awarded to a student who has achieved, and intends to sustain, a high standard of academic work and whose proposal is career enhancing.
