

globe? These are effects well worthy of your attention and consideration, and they can never be gained but by a steady perseverance in the cause in which you are engaged. Depend upon it they cannot follow from the corrupt system we have been abolishing—we have tried it, and it has wrought badly. Let us try the Reform on pure Christian principles, brother to brother, doing each to the other as he would be done by, in similar circumstances, and then we shall find the old system vanish into smoke, while the new will prove like the adamant, firm as a rock, and endure for ever.
