Professor Lesley Anne Glover CBE FRSE FASM is a Scottish biologist. She is Professor of Molecular biology and Cell biology at the University of Aberdeen and Chief Scientific Adviser to the President, European Commission.

Lesley was educated at the High School of Dundee and the University of Edinburgh gaining a first class Bachelor of Science honours degree in Biochemistry in 1978. She went on to study at King's College, Cambridge for a Master of Philosophy degree in 1979 and a PhD 1981. Between 2006 and 2011, she was the first ever Chief Scientific Adviser for Scotland, where her role was to further enhance Scotland’s reputation as a science nation.

Her role as Chief Scientific Adviser to the President, European Commission includes provision of independent expert advice on any aspect of science, technology and innovation. She also acts as an ambassador for European science, both promoting and communicating the benefits and values of science in Europe.

In February 2013 Lesley was assessed as the 19th most powerful woman in the United Kingdom by Woman's Hour on BBC Radio 4.