Introduction
Many individuals and organisations have deposited their papers with the University and as a result, it has acquired an unrivalled collection of material, not solely relating to the history and culture of the north-east of Scotland but of national and international importance.

The collections comprise personal correspondence, journals, travel diaries, photographs and sound recordings; meeting minutes and papers created by organisations and papers created by educational institutions. There are papers created by women in their domestic role as well as in their careers as authors, doctors, philanthropists and poets.

The training of female teachers by the Aberdeen Church of Scotland Training College dates back to 1874 yet in contrast women were only admitted to the University in 1892. In 1894 the first twenty matriculated female students started their studies with the first graduation four years later.

Please also note that this factsheet should be consulted in conjunction with the factsheets QG HCOL031: School and teacher training resources in Special Collections and QG HCOL040: University student resources in Special Collections.
