Sources of Support

University Counselling Service is available and can offer 1-2-1 support. You can email them for an appointment on counselling@abdn.ac.uk. The University Counselling Service is available for all parties involved with the investigation, including The Investigating Officer and Commissioning Officer.

Our Multi Faith Chaplaincy is available to all students and staff and is a place of pastoral support. You can contact one of our chaplains for a conversation and support by emailing chaplaincy@abdn.ac.uk.

The University's Employee Assistance Programme provides a free, confidential face to face and telephone counselling service as well as information services. This is available 24 hours a day, 7 days a week.

The Workplace Dignity Network aims to provide support to staff who would like to chat through wellbeing concerns. This could be in relation to bullying/harassment, stress, work relationships, work/life balance or mental health issues. The Coordinators are a listening ear. Sometimes it just helps to share an issue and discuss it. The Coordinators can also signpost you to other sources of support which you may not have considered previously.

The University of Aberdeen has three recognised Trade Unions, UCU, Unite or Unison. There are members across all grades and professions, in all sections and all schools, and at all levels of the University including senior management. The University is positive about trade union involvement, and it puts time and resources into recognised union activity.

The Occupational Health service for the University is provided by International SOS

All staff are entitled to consult the service for advice on health matters. Occupational Health focuses on the prevention of ill-health and promotion of health at work and provides advice so that health related problems are effectively managed

The service is staffed by occupational health physicians and advisers. All consultations are in strict medical confidence.
