

Contents

1. Series Introduction Robert McColl Millar	1
2. Introduction Robert McColl Millar	2
3. Linguistic marginality in Scotland: Scots and Gaelic Robert McColl Millar	4
4. Done, finished, and started as reflexes of the Scottish transitive be perfect in North America: their synchrony, diachrony, and current marginalisation Yuri Yerastov	17
5. Writing from the margins: Donegal English invented/imagined Carolina Amador-Moreno	52
6. Use and Attitudes towards Nigerian Pidgin English among Nigerian University Students. Akinmade T. Akande and L. Oladipo Salami	70
7. Language Planning and Policy on Linguistic Boundaries: the case of Luxembourgish Daniel Redinger	90
8. The Ripano dialect: towards the end of a mysterious linguistic island in the heart of Italy Franca Ferrari-Bridgers	107
9. The Dialect of Alghero: continuity and change Maria-Pilar Perea	131
10. French in the Caribbean: characterising Guadeloupean French Iskra Iskrova	150
11. From the Periphery to the Centre: recent debates on the place of Breton (and other regional languages) in the French Republic Michael Hornsby	171
12. Phonological change in Hong Kong Cantonese through language contact with Chinese topolects and English over the past century Picus Sizhi Ding	198
Contributors	219
Selective Index	220