Introduction
Many individuals and institutions have deposited their papers with the University; as a result it has acquired an unrivalled collection of material not solely relating to the history and culture of the north-east of Scotland but also of national and international importance.

There are numerous and diverse collections of papers created by individuals from all walks of life. The papers often comprise diaries, journals, correspondence, research papers and photographs.

Please note that this factsheet should be consulted in conjunction with other factsheets, specifically QG HCOL018: Family and estate papers in Special Collections, QG HCOL033: Sermon resources in Special Collections and QG HCOL036: Travel diaries and journals in Special Collections.
