

Leverhulme Trust Visit - 7 February 2018

The University of Aberdeen hosted a visit from Professor Gordon Marshall, Director of the Leverhulme Trust on Wednesday 7 February 2018. The Leverhulme Trust awards funding across academic disciplines, supporting talented individuals in the arts, humanities, sciences and social sciences to realise their personal vision in research and professional training. As well as substantial grants for research, the Trust offers fellowships for researchers at every stage of their career, grants for international collaboration and travel, and support for the fine and performing arts. The event included time for networking over lunch with award holders and members of the academic community, and a presentation and Q&A session.
