Helping you to find your solutions

Anxiety

Top Tips

Positive. Perhaps you're anxious about an exam. You can either tell yourself, "I'm going to screw it up" or "I'm going to be great!" Which works best for you?

Negative-thinking. Treat any intrusive negative thoughts as just that – thoughts. Choose a positive thought instead.

Reality check. Forget the 'what if'. Get a reality check of the situation. Stay in the here-and-now.

Self-criticism. Do you mull over failures and not successes? Is everyone perfect all the time? Even if you feel you didn't handle a situation well in the past, that doesn't mean that this will always be the case. Applaud more of your successes.

Be mindful. Anxiety often comes from things from the past or worries about the future. You can't change the past nor can you control the future, so you're stuck in the present. Stay in, and embrace, the here and now.

Catastrophizing. Often, we fear the worst of what can happen. "What if I don't know the answer?" But what if you switch this inner voice to "What if I do know the answer?"

Control. You can't control what the weather will be like tomorrow. Sometimes it's about enjoying "going with the flow", being open to new experiences and being grateful that no one's perfect.

Behaviour. If you develop an anxiety habit, do something that changes your psychological state; get out of the room, go for a walk, listen to music, find a distraction or breathe in a new perspective.

Ally. Embrace anxiety as your friendly "threat-detector", offer thanks, and bid farewell; it's done its job.

Anxiety diary. Keep a diary to monitor when you feel anxious and build up a picture of the sources, reasons or causes. This will help you to prepare to better manage future situations.

Solutions. When you know you might get anxious, think of all the ways you can prevent, manage or resolve it. What ideas would your friends suggest? Try them.

Be calm and carry on. Monitor your breathing; inhale through your nose slowly, hold for a few moments, and exhale through your mouth slowly. Regulating breathing helps to reduce your heart rate and gives you control and calmness.

Meditation. Try some guided meditations. There are loads of free resources on YouTube. Find one that works for you. Try yoga, Pilates, Tai Chi or other grounding activity.

Rest & Relaxation. Manage your sleep patterns, eat a healthy diet, exercise appropriately, nurture yourself, do things that nourish you... and have some fun!
