Exercise

Top Tips

Doctor. If you haven't exercised for some time or you have a medical condition, make an appointment with your GP. They will determine what exercises might be safe and appropriate. Suddenly leaping into high-energy exercise could do more harm than good.

Walk the talk. Walking is probably the most accessible form of exercise around and cheap! Walk at a brisk pace to increase your heart rate, blood flow and circulation. Aberdeen is blessed with several excellent parks and a beach promenade. Join a hill-walking or hiking group.

Sociable. Whether it's a team-related sport or just something you do with someone else, exercise can be a great way of socializing and making friends, which in turn can improve your sense of well-being. A commitment to others makes it more likely to happen!

Chores. It's amazing how much energy you can expend when vacuuming, dusting, cleaning, polishing or washing windows. You get to exercise and have a nice, clean and tidy home!

Gardening. If you have a garden, mowing the grass or weeding will help you get some exercise and it gets you out in the fresh air too.

Stairway. Modern buildings are full of elevators. If you take the stairs, you get some important exercise. Even if it's going down the stairs only, it's still exercise. Make a habit of it and you'll start to build this into normal behaviour.

Cycling. How about peddling to University? Or try getting out into the hills for some mountain-biking. There are several road cycling clubs for people of all capabilities and ages.

Volunteering. Give something back whilst keeping fit. The University offers loads of volunteering opportunities, including National Trust for Scotland.

Swimming. Whether your excuse is you don't like to get your hair wet, or you feel self-conscious about your body, once you're in, you're just like everyone else. Swimming pools often have slots dedicated to learning or training, so if you're not very good at it, you can learn. Even a gentle paddle up and down the pool helps to flex the limbs.

Make it happen. Schedule exercise in your calendar as though it is an important meeting.

There's a treasure-trove of exercise options at the Aberdeen Sports Village which you can utilise on your own, with your friends or with others who share your interest in fitness. Check it out at <http://www.aberdeensportsvillage.com/>
