Helping you to find your solutions

Loneliness

Top Tips

Needs. Loneliness can be made more intense by what you tell yourself it means. If this is a sign that your needs are not being met, then this gives you motivation to act on this. But what is your need? Friendship, study-buddies, a partner?

Transition. It may feel different being alone when home and school might have offered a lot of people interaction. Accept this as a transition period, getting used to a new way of being with yourself and others.

Temporary. Loneliness will not last forever – you can change that today.

Action. Do something; eat with others, sit with new people in class, join a club or society, go to the gym, volunteer, get involved in activities and interests, look for a job, connect with faith-based organisations.

Interests. Put yourself in new situations where you will meet people. Engage in activities in which you have genuine interest and you'll meet people with whom you have something in common.

Social skills. Work at developing your social skills. Practice getting to know others and letting them know you.

Non-judgemental. Don't judge new people on the basis of past relationships. Instead, try to see each person you meet from a fresh perspective and as a unique individual, just as you are.

Pace. Intimate friendships usually develop gradually as people learn or open up to share their feelings and life experiences. Avoid rushing into intimate friendships by sharing too quickly or expecting that others will. Let the process develop naturally.

Variety. Value all of your friendships and their unique characteristics rather than believing that only a romantic relationship will relieve your loneliness.

Developing Yourself. Think of yourself as a total person. Don't neglect other needs just because your companionship or friendship needs are not being met.

You. Use your 'alone time' to get to know YOU. Think of it as an opportunity to develop independence and to learn to take care of your own emotional needs

Alone time. Use your time alone to enjoy yourself rather than just existing until you will be with others.

Past. Use what you have enjoyed in the past to help you decide how to enjoy your alone time now.

Tools. Keep things in your space, such as books, games or music, that you can use to enjoy in your alone time.

Anxiety. It's normal to feel anxious meeting new people. Don't make this an excuse to stop you making friendships.

Open mind. Don't decide ahead of time how you're going to feel about an activity. Keep an open mind.

Future. You are not defined by periods of loneliness.
