

Quick Guide: Printing from a networked PC on campus

About printing on campus

Printing on campus is via networked multi-function devices (MFDs) and printers. You send your output to a holding queue, then print from this queue at any device.

All devices allow you to print, copy and scan in mono and colour. Our MFD devices also are capable of printing on A3 and producing booklets.

Note: You cannot print directly from a USB device.

How to print from a networked PC on campus

1. Set your document to print and select a print queue:
 - PRINT-COLOUR-EPSON
 - PRINT-MONO-EPSON
 - PRINT-EPSON for Apple Macs and non-Windows devices
2. Log in to MFD – hold your staff/student ID card over the card reader, or login with your username and password.
3. You can check the University website for your nearest device.

Printing onto headed paper, labels etc.

To print onto headed paper, labels etc., use the bypass tray on the side of the device

This provides a shelf for your input, e.g. headed paper, labels, etc.

Place your input face up between the guides as shown opposite with the foot fed towards the device.

1. From the Print menu, select Printer Properties.
2. Click the Main tab.
 - Paper Type – Select letterhead
3. Press OK, then Print.
4. Login to the device and print your document. You'll then be prompted to add the paper to the bypass tray.

If using labels, print onto each sheet once only so the glue does not melt.

Printing booklets

Currently available for all MFD devices.

1. From the Print menu, select Printer Properties.
2. Click the main tab, then under 2-sided printing, click on Settings
